USPS TO TEST DECONTAMINATION SYSTEM AT TRENTON PLANT

The Postal Service will begin a limited test at the Trenton Processing and Distribution Center in Hamilton Township NJ on Saturday, October 11 to evaluate the decontamination system.

The test, which will take approximately 4 hours, will allow the Postal Service to assess the ability of the delivery system to sustain the required level of chlorine dioxide gas throughout the building. Chlorine dioxide gas will be used to decontaminate the building during the fumigation process.

The Postal Service anticipates having results in the latter part of next week.

The Postal Service continues to work with state, federal and local agencies toward decontamination of the facility.
